BRAZIL has gone republican, anyhow MONABCHY is a vanishing quantity on the American continent.

HERE's a health to the United States

WHEN the President went ducking, the other day, he slaughtered a great many ducks, of course, but since his return the Administration has been suspiciously silent.

Governor Hill has not congratulated time. They have a more direct way to Mr. Grover Cleveland on the result of reach the Republican party, and that is the recent elections. Perhaps the by continuing to play second fiddle to Governor has sent his pen to be ground,

According to report current in London, the Pall Mall Gaxette did not sound the depths of the abyss nor bag the big gist game while it was about its unpleas ant work. Another scandal is on, and it is said to involve persons so high in offenses so vile that neither names nor offenses can be mentioned. The police know all about it and dare not move. ing her few-clothes of the latest design if no reporter were extant to say that the grace, dignity and modesty of her bear-ing charmed all beholders? Who would want to be hanged if no reporters wer present or roosting high on the neigh-boring house tops? Who would want to do anything or to have anything done to him if the gentlemanly reporter had been scattered to the four winds by the bomb of the spiteful Anarchist?

The plain English of Prof. Garside's threat is that the world is to be held still until its final destruction by fire. Isn't a man who talks in this strain little better than one of the wicked?

A Weak Invention.

The Voice, organ of the Prohibition earty, prints what it is pleased to call "the wine-list furnished to guests in Vice-President Morton's cafe." Mr. Morton has no cafe. He rents a building in which there is a cafe. Why not denounce other men of high standing, as good men as there are in the world, who do the same thing? it the sentiment of this country that Mr. Morton has done an exceptionally bad of Brazil. May she live long and pros- thing for which he should be shunned by all respectable people?

The special drive is not at Mr. Morton but through him at the Republican party, which, by the exhibit of The Voice, is supposed to be hopelessly given over to the devil and his works.

It would be nothing short of awful if Congressmen were to catch the message in the eye before it struck them in the ear.

The Monroe county Walchman gives a long list of colored citizens of that county who pay taxes on property assessed at $250 and over and adds: "In mearly every case, these colored people are ex-slaves. A few days ago in Washington City a man who at the time was gupposed to be C.E. Balliard, a well known commercial traveler from New York, attempted to commit suicide in a room in a hotel there by inhaling gas. It has since been learned that the would-be suicide is no other than T. G. Valiant, formerly clerk at the Valley House, Grafton. It was a close call, but he will recover. recover.

Concerning the proposition to name one of the new cruisers in honor of Wheeling, the Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveller makes this luminous misstatement:

There is something humorous in Wheeling's claim for representation, based upon the fact that the battle of Point Pleasant took place near that city. This is the sole reason why one of the new cruisers should be named Wheeling. The 'soole reason' has nothing to do with Point Pleasant, 140 miles away. It pany dispersed.

with Point Pleasant, 140 miles away. It rests on the fact that in Wheeling was shed the last blood of the Revolution. Boston should be glad to see her old associate wheel to the front.

The Thunder-Clap from Brazil.

The report from Brazil has come like a clap of thunder. Details are mesgre, making the report all the more difficult to understand. The most incomprehensible part of it all is, that a movement in which the people are represented to have taken little, if any, part, against such a ruler as Dom Pedro, could have so quickly and easily accomplished its purpose. For, whatever of turmoil and bloodshed may follower the mysterious midnight visits of a low, the Empire has been cast down, the Republic set up, and the Emperor an exile now on the ocean bound for the land of his fathers.

It has been known that the republican idea was working in the Brazilian mind. This Dom Pedro perceived and formally recognized so far as to promise to yield to it whenever it should assume definite form. He had no desire to rule over an unwilling people. Moreover, so far as Brazil at least is concerned, he has given reason to believe that he is very much a republican himself. Of all the monarchs of the world he has been the least monarchical, the most progressive on the line of popular goverament.

'One blast upon his bugie hori is worth a 'hundred' men;'

Unless something more than the Republic was to be gained there was no occasion to conduct the movement in secreey and without the promised cooperation of Dom Pedro. The men now at the head of affairs must have desired the search of this game as good in speaksecreey and without the promised cooperation of Dom Pedro. The men now at the head of affairs must have desired to make sure of their own ascendency, which might have been seriously imperited by a peaceful appeal to the people.

Peaceful it was in the sense that no blood was shed, but the result was accomplished with the army and navy under control of the leaders. The whole episode is more like a fairy story than real history.

Just Think of H.

Prof. L. H. Garside is a Baltimore Anarchist who has been relieving his pent-up feelings in Philadelphia. What Prof. Garside wants it understood that he and the rest of them have burned the bridges behind them, which may be his way of saying that all the Anarchists know how to swim or have reduced to an exact science the navigation of balloons. In his Philadelphia speech he outlined the Anarchist programme in this blood-curdling language:

The first thing we must do is to killail the reporter of the capitalistic press, and next the vocation of the population of th years, boarded the local freight train for the purpose of stealing a ride to Wheeling and seeing the sights. Among the number was Jay, the fifteen-year old son of Edward Nicholls. It seems that the boys succeeded in getting to Wheeling, and on the return trip of the local they boarded it and got as far as Short Creek, or thereabouts, when they were put off the train, after which they started on foot for Wellsburg. At a point near the station house at Beech Bottom, about 9 p. m. young Nicholls became exhausted, and could proceed no farther. His companions left him in a field, where he fell down, and pursued their way home. Arriving at Wellsburg they failed to notify the parents of Nicholls, but his brothers having learned of his going to Wheeling, made inquiry about him and learned of him being left by the wayside. They started after him and found him where his companions had left him. He was cold and almost lifeless, and was unable to speak. He was carried to the residence of Mr. Robert Miller, Sr., and restoratives applied and everything done that could be to revive him but without avail, death occurring about 3 p. m., Sunday. The remains were taken to his home Monday morning. The Wellsburg authorities have labored diligently to break up the practice of train jumping, but the boys manage to hide in box cars while they are on the sidings.
